CLINTON MEETS WITH JFK!

Top secret, 2-hour meeting at Camp David!

ELVIS IS NOT DEAD — I JUST TALKED TO HIM ON THE PHONE!

...says Atlanta waitress who lived with The King in 1981!

By E. NEALE LIND
Special report

"Elvis Presley isn't dead — I talked to him six days after dialysis 'killed' him last May."

That's the word from waitress Elizabeth Prince, who claims to have lived with The King for three years after he faked his death in 1977, and now insists that he didn't fall into a diabetic coma and die on May 14 as reported just weeks ago in major international papers, including Weekly World News.

The 43-year-old woman's story might sound like wishful thinking, but there is strong reason to believe that it is rooted in fact.

For starters, she took — and passed — a sophisticated lie detector test to prove that she lived with Elvis between 1978 and 1981.

And even though their relationship fell by the wayside, the Atlanta woman insists that she and The King remained friends and have spoken to one another often over the past 13 years.

"People can say Elvis is dead until they're blue in the face but I talk to him regularly and can assure you that he is very much alive today," said Miss Prince, whose stunning life story first appeared in the News back in 1988 and was later picked up by television news shows like A Current Affair and CBS's 48 Hours.

"That story about him dying on May 14 just isn't true," she continued. "I talked to him on the phone six days later, on May 20.

"I'm not at liberty to say where he called from, what he is doing or what we talked about because all our conversations are personal and confidential.

"But I will say that Elvis got a real kick out of the story.

"In fact, he thought it was hilarious. It really made his day."

Reports that Elvis suffered kidney failure and died after he fell into a diabetic coma in Nashville two months ago originated with author and Elvis expert William Stern.

In a report that made international headlines, he quoted sources close to Presley to support his claim that the performer had died at the age of 58 after spending the past 14 years in hiding.

Prince's claims that she spoke to Presley six days after his alleged death, Stern said: "Elvis (fakes) his death in 1977 but I seriously doubt that he would try to pull the same stunt again.

"I'm not going to call anyone a liar.

"But until I speak with Elvis myself, I'll stand by my story."

"ELVIS got a real kick out of the story about him dying," says Elizabeth Prince.

INTERNATIONAL media, including Weekly World News, reported Elvis' recent death.

A SOPHISTICATED lie detector test passed beyond a shadow of a doubt that Elizabeth Prince lived with Elvis between 1978 and 1981.

Stunning discovery rocks the religious world!

ANIMALS PRAY TO GOD

. . . just like us, new study reveals!

By JANE DRIVER / Correspondent

A growing body of evidence indicates that some animals are evolving so rapidly they now pray to a Supreme Being!

Theologians are baffled, but many admit privately that this stunning turn of events should come as no surprise.

"Animals are God's creatures too," says Berlin-based biblical scholar Otto Krueger, who is currently writing a book on the phenomenon. "Perhaps mankind has become too arrogant to remember that our species is only a higher form of animal."

The stunning disclosure is receiving wider acceptance than expected. Wildlife photographers like Italy's Eduardo Volpe say it comes as no surprise. "During my 28 years of photographing animals in the wild, I have seen large groups of primates sitting quietly and apparently communing with something," said Volpe. "I've seen the same thing with big cats.

"And once I slipped up on a group of zebras so intent on something I couldn't see, that they let me come right up to them. After about an hour they snapped out of it and bolted away from me, but it was an experience I'll never forget. They appeared to be praying."

In fact, a surprising number of people have little problem with the idea of praying animals. Many cite the behavior of their own pets and mention the spiritual sensitivity of their cat or dog to a family member's suffering.

New religious leaders must grapple with questions raised by this amazing new discovery.

"If animals have souls," said one rabbi, "how can we justify our present treatment of them? The battle to recognize these formerly unrecognized souls is a grave moral battle.

"At this point, the only religious difference between man and beast appears to be that animals are

Frantic NASA scientists are preparing an emergency report for President Bill Clinton after astronomers discovered a giant asteroid hurtling through space and calculated that it is heading straight for Earth!

The seven-mile-wide chunk of rock and ice is moving at high speed and is expected to slam into this planet on November 11, according to the top-secret document, and could mean the end of life on Earth. Computer-generated photographs of the collision show the shocking damage scientists expect the massive space rock to wreak on the face of the planet if the asteroid cannot somehow be averted.

SCIENTISTS are keeping President Bill Clinton constantly informed of the asteroid's position and speed.

By TANYA BRODER
Correspondent

"This could mean the end of everything," said Dr. Steven Severnson, an expert in astrophysics who discovered the M-167 asteroid in 1983. "The asteroid is a threat to all life on the planet.

"According to high-level people I have spoken with at NASA, it is definitely heading straight for Earth and we have not yet been able to think of a way to stop it.

Dr. Steven Severnson

"Unless we can somehow destroy it or knock it off course, it will slam into the Earth sometime around November 11, doing incredible damage to the planet's surface, its inhabitants and the environment," Dr. Severnson said.

In the presidential report, scientists warn that a collision with the giant asteroid could be catastrophic.

Experts believe it could duplicate conditions like those created on Earth millions of years ago when a similar impact is thought to have killed off most forms of plant and animal life, including the dinosaurs.

Computer projections predict that massive clouds of dust thrown up by the impact will enter the atmosphere, circle the planet and blot out the sun. The airborne dust clouds will dramatically lower temperatures, kill off plant and animal life and wipe out the food supply for humans, eventually killing us all.

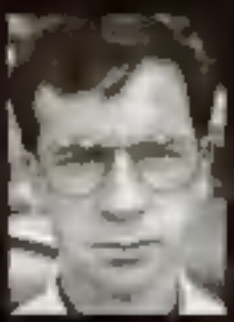
"The asteroid is millions of miles away right now, but it's moving very fast and it is heading directly for a collision with Earth," said another expert, Dr. Gustav Riekmann, the head of Skywatch International.

"We must head it off. We are considering several possibilities, including bombarding it with nuclear missiles fired from a space platform to jar it off course or try to destroy it completely by landing several powerful hydrogen bombs on its surface and blowing the thing to bits."

Experts admit that there is a 67 percent chance that efforts to avert a collision with the asteroid will fail. In that case, they say, mankind's future is threatened.

"We believe that great numbers of people will survive the initial impact, but by the end of the first year millions of these will be dead of starvation or exposure," Dr. Severnson said. "And a year or two later, almost the entire human population of the Earth will be dying. Supplies of preserved foods will run out and there will be nothing to replace them.

"Unless we can think of something quickly, I fear for the future of our species."



Dr. Gustav Riekmann, head of Skywatch International

This is not the first asteroid to threaten Earth — but it might be the last, say astronomers!

The doomsday asteroid now hurtling toward Earth might be the last heavenly body to threaten our planet — but it certainly won't be the first.

Astronomers estimate that as many as 200 comets, meteors and small asteroids pass relatively close to each and every year.

In one hair-raising incident back in 1908, an asteroid the size of Kansas came within 1,200 miles of Earth. Historians noted that it passed by so quickly that it actually ripped the branches off tall trees in Russia and parts of China.

Wolf serenades town by howling Amazing Grace!

By MICHAEL ANDREWS / Special correspondent

A lone wolf in the Ural Mountain region of Russia has been prowling the countryside at night, howling the refrain of Amazing Grace.

Each night, citizens of Chelyabinsk and the surrounding areas are serenaded by the eerie sound of a wolf moaning the American spiritual.

"We started to notice that the beast repeated the same strange tune every night around midnight beginning in late May," schoolteacher Olga Panov told reporters.

"We were baffled at first. But then a friend of mine said, 'This is the American song, Amazing Grace.'

"After listening to a recording of the song, we agreed that she was right.

"As it turns out, the wolf howls the first few bars, up to 'saved a wretch like me.'"

Miss Panov taped the howling and sent it to the Department of Musicology at the University of Leningrad, where Dr. Mikhail Korsak has taken a keen personal interest in the case and is currently searching for an explanation.

Skeptics, and there are several, say that the howling is nothing more than the lonely cry of a wild animal.

But Dr. Korsak isn't convinced and actually plans to travel to the Ural Mountains to track and study the creature later this month.

Miss Panov said: "Some people think the wolf brings a message of warning and others think it must be mimicking a song it heard in a church.

"Either way, there's something very eerie about it. You can't help but think that the beast knows what it is singing."

TEENS HOLD SUICIDE PARTY — BECAUSE THEY'RE BORED!

Four teenage girls tried to kill themselves by slashing their wrists in a public park — because they were bored!

The girls told police in Hong Kong that they were just bored and unhappy at home and didn't care to live anymore.

Police reports stated that the teens had been drinking prior to slicing their arms open with a razor blade.

Their wounds were treated at a nearby hospital where three of them remain in critical condition.

"In my practice, I've found that the leading reason young people attempt suicide is sheer boredom," said Dr. Sing Hawn, a prominent Hong Kong psychiatrist. "Kids in the '90s feel there's nothing to live for. Everything comes too easy, nothing has meaning."

Last year, a record 21 students took their lives in the city, say authorities.

DOLL MAKER'S MIRACLE

ROBERT X, above left, was a handsome young man until he was horribly burned in a fiery auto crash which left him with a charred and hideous face, above right.

Artist creates new face for tragic car crash victim!

NEW FACE for Robert, created by a talented doll maker, freed the crash victim from a lonely life of seclusion.

By JOYCE MAYNARD

A fiery car crash left Robert X with a charred and hideous "face out of hell." His grotesque face made him a lonely man. Then a Dutch doll maker handed him a new chance at life — when he gave him a new lifelike artificial face!

The incredible creation of Lon van Volen Jr. ended Robert's life of seclusion in England and gave him new hope.

Van Volen had been working on dolls he hoped would be the basis for a children's television series when he learned of Robert's sad plight.

The dolls were made from a special material that allowed the little faces to smile and move in an incredibly lifelike way.

Robert had lived in seclusion since his life-shattering accident.

"I knew that the man was badly scarred," van Volen recalled of that first meeting. "But nothing I was told had prepared me for the sight that greeted me — a face out of hell. A grotesque collection of grafted skin."

Van Volen returned to his home in Amsterdam and began working on the doll-like face he hoped would give Robert a new crack at life. Face after face was made and discarded.

After months of trial and error, van Volen finally came up with a face he felt was perfect.

ARTIST Lon van Volen Jr. with some of his dolls. He used the same material to make a lifelike face for burn victim Robert X.

The doll maker's skill as a makeup artist added the lifelike touch.

"The face fitted beautifully," van Volen said.

"Robert was most pleased with it. He planned to test that face in daylight hours for the first time since his accident.

"No one in the streets took the slightest notice of him. He looked just like everyone else. When we got back, he burst

- Supplies the body with a vital new source of energy.
- Help strengthens the immune system.
- Helps the body fight off killer diseases.
- Lowers blood pressure.
- Strengthens muscles.

Wonder enzyme even protects you from killer diseases!

"It's an essential nutrient that supplies the biochemical spark that creates cellular energy," explained the scientific director of a major research institute and co-author of a book on the miracle compound.

"Without it, various mechanisms in the body quickly begin to fail, exposing us to a host of major medical problems." According to scientists, Ubiquinone is found naturally in such foods as beef, sardines, spinach and peanuts. It is involved in energy conversion in the body and if internal levels of the substance drop below 35 percent of normal, illness can develop. Research shows that the body's ability to extract the essential nutrient from food diminishes with age and may actually cease altogether. Taking a daily dose of Ubiquinone—biosynthesized so it's easily accessible to the body—is an effective way to replace the fading supply.

"If you lack Ubiquinone, your muscles won't function right, your nerve impulses slow down, brain activity and the activity of other organs slows down," according to doctors. "It's a basic compound so essential that no living system functions without it."

GERMAN sub had slipped in close to the American coast to land spies, spy experts.

GHOSTS HAUNT WRECK OF NAZI SUB FOUND OFF CAPE COD!

Tormented spirits are trapped inside hull of sunken U-boat, says horrified scuba diver!

Scuba diver Kevin Shorter was guided to the sunken remains of a German U-boat by the eerie tap...tap...tapping of the restless spirits sealed inside!

"I couldn't believe my ears when I heard the tapping," Shorter said. "And I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw where the tapping was coming from. Then I couldn't—even trust my sanity."

By TONY CASSIDY

U-1226 was on a secret mission to land Nazi spies on U.S. soil when it was sent to the bottom of the Atlantic off Cape Cod by a Navy bomber on Oct. 28, 1944.

Incredibly, the 251-foot, IXB-class sub, which rises about 30 feet from its keel to the top edge of its conning tower, rested unseen for almost a half-century in a mere 41 feet of water.

Kevin Shorter wishes it had stayed undiscovered for another 50 years.

"The sounds I heard coming through the sub's hull will haunt my dreams till the day I die," the 29-year-old ranging adventurer said in an interview aboard his 40-foot trawler, The Sun.

"Finding the sub wasn't so bad, but when I pried open the mangled deck hatch and went inside, I knew right away I had made one hell of a mistake.

"The water inside was full of phosphorus and every move I made sent up a shower of greenish sparks. It gave off enough light to reveal the nightmare I had so foolishly invaded.

"All around me were the bleached, grinning skulls of the men whose tomb I was desecrating. God! There must have been close to 100. My movements sent the skulls tumbling crazily in the water.

"Eventually, they came to rest. And it seemed every one of them was staring at me—empty black sockets—damning me for the terrible sin I was committing. Brave men had died here in battle. My presence dishonored them.

"I didn't touch anything. I just inched my way slowly back to the hatch. As I did, my ears were filled with the sound of wailing. It grew louder and louder until I thought it would burst my eardrums. I was sure it was the tormented spirits of the dead sailors trapped inside the hull.

"I slipped through the hatch, the wailing stopped. I hovered near the sub for a minute or two, just staring down at it. It seemed to glow in the light filtering down from the surface. I had the feeling I had been in a shrine.

"Finally, I reached the surface and climbed aboard The Sun, pulled the anchor and headed for shore. I

SKINNY HUBBY SMOTHERED BY 300-POUND WIFE'S BOOBS!

Big-breasted, 300-pound Bertha Miles keeled over on top of her pint-size hubby — and suffocated him with her giant boobs.

"We found the couple lying dead on the floor in their living room. Kevin Miles was on his back with his face buried in his wife's breasts," said Police Inspector Stephen Turner.

"It appeared as though he had struggled fiercely to climb out from under his unconscious wife's enormous cleavage. There were scratch marks in the carpet where he had clawed at it with his fingernails trying to free himself."

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Although Bertha apparently suffered a fatal heart attack as the couple were getting ready to attend a friend's wedding a few blocks from their home in Sydney, Australia.

"She knocked her 130-pound husband down when she fell backwards to the floor," Inspector Turner said. "The upper part of her body was partially on top of him but her breasts covered his face, stopping all his airway to breathe."

Friends called police when Bertha, 45, and Kevin, 46, didn't show up for the wedding or answer phone calls in their home.

"They were such an odd couple, but so much in love," said a close friend. "We nicknamed them Laurel and Hardy for obvious reasons."

"He was the only man who had given Bertha the time of day — in a romantic way."

Friends said Kevin was proud of Bertha's huge breasts. "He encouraged her to wear sweaters and clothes that showed them off," a close friend remarked. "It's ironic that he was killed by them."

PINT-SIZE 'MR. GOODWRENCH'

9-year-old boy restores 1930 Model A Ford from the ground up!

By TONY CASSIDY

Little Norm Sheinkle is an 8-year-old genius who just wound up an amazing project that took him 13 months to complete — he single-handedly restored a 1930 Model A Ford from the ground up!

Improbably, the pint-size "Mr. Goodwrench" turned a pile of rusted junkyard parts into a gleaming classic as original as the day it rolled off the assembly line more than 60 years ago.

The spiffy set of wheels that sold for a mere $500 back in 1930 could now fetch as much as $11,000. But it isn't for sale — not at any price!

"Norm built the car as a memorial to his father," proud mom Barbara Sheinkle explained. "Restoring a Model A Ford had been his father's dream and Norm lived to see it by the tears and tales he told him about how they were going to do it together.

"After his father died of cancer last year, Norm told me he was going to build the car for his dad. I told him I thought it was a good idea. How could I ... anyone have known that he would do the impossible?"

Norm started work on the car after first rummaging for a Model A engine and body parts at every auto junkyard within a 100-mile radius of his suburban Detroit home.

"My dad had collected the fenders the top and a lot of other parts before he died," he said. "I had to buy a few Model A magazines and they were pretty expensive. And I had to pay some boys, but nothing special. The mechanics just took my time and were very careful.

"And I did everything myself just the way it stood in the manuals. I even sealed the fuel tank myself. It wasn't hard. I was really nervous when the finish and I took it for its first drive. I was afraid it would fall apart. But just two bottles of the crank and the engine was running. The whole car turned out perfect and some guys in suits came in the house and offered me $13,000 for it. But it's not for sale. Not ever!

"This is my dad's car — his and mine."

WIFE'S SPIRIT NAGS HUBBY DURING SEANCE!

DEAD WIFE Katerina still gets in the last word.

NO ESCAPE. Frans Sahm's wife didn't give him a moment of peace when she was alive — and now she's nagging him from the grave.

By LAURIE BOWIE

Henpecked hubby Franz Sahm figured he'd heard the last of his crabby wife Katerina the day she tried to choke him out at the dinner table and choked to death on a pork sausage.

But flabbergasted Franz, 54, learned there was no escape when he went to a seance 18 months later — and cranky Katerina started hassling him from beyond the grave!

"I've never been so angry and humiliated in my life," the bewildered widower told reporters in Vienna, Austria.

"I went to the seance to try to contact my mother and all of a sudden Katerina's spirit shows up and starts to nag, nag, nag — just like she did when she was alive.

"Everyone else's loved ones brought messages of love and inspiration.

"Then Katerina starts in, yelling about how fat I'm getting and hassling me about why I don't take better care of the cats and why I don't put flowers on her grave.

"It was upsetting. The woman's dead and she still won't shut her mouth."

Franz told his story after psychic Helga Klorita mentioned his plight in her monthly seance newsletter.

"Most contacts with the spirit world are pleasant and rewarding, but there are occasions when those from the other side project themselves where they are not wanted," the psychic said.

"That was the case with Mr. Sahm."

Franz said he endured Katerina's needling and nagging through 33 years of marriage.

"I tried so hard to please her, but no matter what I did, it was always wrong," he said. "When she died I grieved — but I thought at least I'm free of her bitching and moaning.

"I thought there was no way she could get at me from where she was — but obviously, I was wrong.

"At the seance, she warned me that we're going to meet again on the other side.

"I was embarrassed and everybody there was embarrassed for me.

"I simply couldn't believe she'd come back from the dead to make my life miserable."

Haitians, Hispanics and Asians say song is too hard to sing!

Immigrants want to ban our Star-Spangled Banner

(ABOUT PAINTING above) Francis Scott Key, the man who wrote The Star Spangled Banner.

This is THE col[illegible] I thought I'll never have to write and I'm so mad I could chew up a hand grenade and spit the pieces in somebody's face!

A group of immigrants is trying to change our National Anthem to America the Beautiful, for crying out loud.

The National Committee for New American Immigrants says we should ditch The Star-Spangled Banner because it is hard for Haitians, Hispanics and Asians to sing. Even Chinamen have trouble with it, they say, pronouncing it Splar Splangled Blanner.

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

Let's face it. I could sing The Star-Spangled Banner from start (a finish by the time I was 4 years old by ear.

And if these immigrants can't learn to sing it, they're either brain damaged or have their lips sewn shut. Speaking of brain damage, I've got a few plates in my head as a souvenir of my trip to the battlefields of Korea in '52 and I can still sing the Anthem without missing a note.

The late great poet Francis Scott Key must be twisting in his grave at this moment.

And these immigrants object that The Star-Spangled Banner is a war song. It's just time to tell do these dumb-dumbs that America got here in the first place? With swords and bullets, that's how!

Sure, America's beautiful. And that's a nice song. But to sing that before a big football game or baseball championship boxing match would be stupid. Same like. And played by band with "beautiful" arm kind of silly to sing before a game where everybody is trying to beat the other guy's brains out. "Rumble bumbling in air" and "Rockets' red glare" are a little more like it.

Let's have a America the Beautiful as a singin' song and to make that our National Anthem would be an insult to the brave men who fought and died for our great country.

And if these immigrants can't pronounce the words to our great Star-Spangled Banner, that's too damn bad.

Let's send 'em home until they can sing it frontward and backward — then let 'em apply for citizenship like our ancestors did.

STAR-SPANGLED BANNER POLL

ED ANGER IMMIGRANT POLL

☐ YES: I agree with Ed Anger that these freeloading immigrants who are flooding our shores have no right to say anything about our National Anthem and should go back where they came from.

☐ NO: Ed Anger is a bigoted old fool. These brave immigrants, who are flooding our shores and rapidly outnumbering Americans who've been here a while, have every right to demand a new National Anthem.

Woman shops till she drops — DEAD in mall!

Bargain-hunting Andrea Beluri went into such a buying frenzy that she literally shopped till she dropped — dead in the mall!

The shopaholic housewife had already spent a whopping $200,000 on a week-long buying binge when she suddenly collapsed as she was paying for a mink coat.

"She'd just signed the charge slip when she grabbed her chest and looked over," said store clerk Silvia Cabral. "It scared the daylights out of me.

"I started yelling for help and another customer began giving her CPR but it was too late. She was already dead."

Authorities investigating the 46-year-old woman's death talked to security guards and store owners, who told them they'd observed the woman shopping in the mall for the past week. "She was here every day for the last week, from the minute we opened until we locked up at night," said Sergio Presti, a security guard at the Galleria mall in Milan, Italy.

"All of the stores were having big sales and she told me she didn't want to miss a minute of them.

"I started to get worried about her two days ago because she was walking slowly and staggering a little. She looked like she was in a trance. It was like she was possessed."

An autopsy revealed Mrs. Beluri died after suffering cardiac arrest that was brought on by exhaustion.

"All that shopping wore her out and caused her heart to stop," said Dr. Franco Mancini. "There was no evidence of heart disease or anything else that could have caused her heart to stop. It appears that she just pushed herself too hard and it killed her."

When Mrs. Beluri's real estate tycoon husband came to identify her body, he told authorities that his wife was obsessed with shopping. "Shopping was her life," said a heartbroken Paolo Beluri. ■

"It was an obsession with her. Sadly, she never even wore most of the things she bought. They'd hang in the closet with the tags still on them. I tried to get her to see a doctor but she refused. Now it's too late."

The eyes of Texas have been on pregnant Anna Nicole almost since the day she was born. Now the stunning actress and model is all in Hollywood to let the rest of the world see what they've been missing.

ALIENS CONSIDER EARTH THE GHETTO OF THE UNIVERSE!

By JOE BERGER / Staff writer

'That's why they seldom land,' say top scientists

Space travelers from faraway worlds zoom past our planet every day, but most of them have been banned from landing here — because their leaders consider Earth a "bad neighborhood!"

World renowned UFO researchers Simon O. Heber and Erika Weber say snooty spacemen view Earth as a grimy ghetto full of lowlifes and gun-toting lunatics

"It's a shame, but most intelligent beings from other worlds avoid our planet like the plague ... just as soon and I avoid skid row," an outraged Dr. Weber told a conference on interplanetary travel in Turin, Italy.

"They feel that while most inhabited planets are civilized and receptive to visitors, Earth is populated by thugs and hooligans who are always looking for a fight."

The Swiss scientists, who claim to have had itinerant contact with space travelers since the late 1970s, first made their bizarre claims public two years ago.

But they say the situation has worsened since the days when outlandish aliens actively landed their ships on Earth and

"In the past two years, at least three citizens of other worlds have been roughed by hoodlums here on Earth and at least one was killed," Dr. Weber said.

"So many civilizations who once were interested in visiting Earth and interchanging with us have simply given up on us and have forbid their people from setting down here during interplanetary voyages. They say we are far too stupid and unpredictable even to associate with.

"These creatures come from advanced civilizations ... citizens of spots ahead of ours and they look on us as a loose life form."

"To them, there is little if any ... intelligent life on Earth," Dr. Heber said.

And there's an even more unsettling reason why perhaps spacemen don't want to visit us, the scientists say.

"The sad truth is, they find us personally repugnant," Dr. Heber told his fellow scientists.

"They say we have terrible body odor and features so repulsive they have trouble looking us in the face."

"EARTH is considered a bad neighborhood," says UFO researcher Erika Weber

"ALIENS consider us a lower life form and personally repugnant," says Dr. Heber.

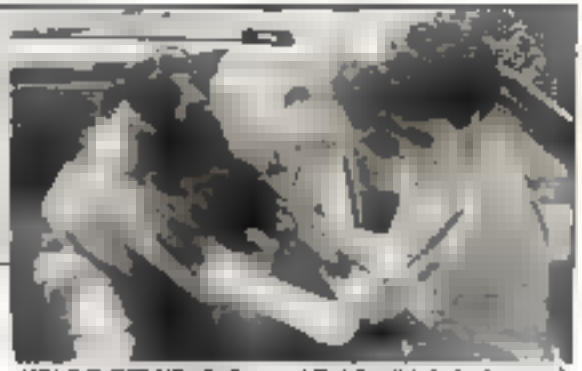
Lucky the Labrador is LUCKY TO BE ALIVE!



HOME SWEET HOME: Gary and Teri Ensell help Lucky out of the car as he returns from the animal clinic.

By DICK DONOVAN / Staff Writer

He was hit by a car, run over by another and shot 7 times!

If ever a dog has lived up to its name, Lucky the Labrador retriever surely has. So far, he's survived being hit by one car, run over by another and being shot at point-blank range — seven times!

"The veterinarian said she Lucky has a very strong will to live," proud owner Gary Ensell explained. "He's an amazing dog."

"Amazing" is the understatement of the year!

In his most recent brush with death, the 7 year-old pooch was shot in the throat, chest, back, shoulder, nose, ear and right front leg.

That all happened early one morning when Boynton Beach, Fla., cop Don Bateman entered Gary's backyard while investigating a reported burglary at a neighbor's home.

As might be expected of a good watchdog, Lucky snarled and with fangs bared — attacked the intruder. Officer Bateman whipped out his gun and began spraying the poor dog with bullets.

Gary and his wife, Teri, were awakened by the gun shots and the sound of Lucky's agonized whimpering outside their bedroom window.

"I jumped out of bed and ran out back and saw Lucky quivering in pain," Gary said.

He carried Lucky onto the porch and told Teri to call the police. Then, armed with his own pistol, he went out to find the guy who shot his dog.

"When I saw the police I said, 'Good. They're already here!'"

According to Lt. Steve Graham, Officer Bateman shot Lucky because the dog came at him "baring his teeth and growling."

"What the hell do they expect my dog to do when someone in the middle of the night approaches the house? Lick his hand?" the 30-year-old retired police officer scoffed.

So far, Gary and Teri have had to fork out about $1,500 for Lucky's vet bills. And that's only the tip of the iceberg.

They'll still have to pay for his reconstructive leg surgery.

Gary has owned Lucky since 1984, when he found him lying at the roadside. He had been hit by one car and run over by another.

He thought Lucky would be an appropriate name for the spunky pooch. As it turned out, he couldn't have chosen a better name.

WEREWOLF ESCAPES FROM ALABAMA PRISON!

SNARLING creature has ripped horses, cows and pigs to shreds, report eyewitnesses.

Ferocious beast leaves trail of terror in the Deep South!

By RICK TRACY

A savage, snarling werewolf who viciously attacked seven cops and overturned a police cruiser in Mobile, Ala., four months ago has escaped — and is leaving a trail of terror across the Deep South.

Eyewitnesses have reported seeing the ferocious wolfman rip horses, cows, and pigs to shreds with his razor-sharp fangs and deadly six-inch claws.

"The beast is going to kill someone if we don't catch him soon," a worried wildlife officer told the Weekly World News. "It's only by the grace of God we haven't found bodies scattered all over the South."

The extremely dangerous werewolf escaped from a maximum security compound near Mobile, Ala., where he was being held after he attacked and overturned a police cruiser there in February.

Law enforcement authorities in Mobile have neither confirmed nor denied the monster is on the loose, but the evidence is overwhelming.

For example:

● A couple and their two young children were camping 14 miles east of Baton Rouge, La., when the werewolf leaped out of the darkness and ripped them half to death before the frightened father grabbed his shotgun and chased it into the woods.

"The horrible face and neck were covered with long, straight hair, like an animal. He had pointed ears, glazed eyes, a huge nose and sharp fangs.

"He was growling and foaming at the mouth," said the young mother.

That is the exact description of the werewolf that escaped here in Mobile.

● Eight cows, two horses, several pigs and other livestock were slaughtered at a ranch near Jonesboro, Ark., by a creature two men described as "half man, half wolf."

● A 215-pound ex-bartender was severely mauled as he changed a tire around midnight on the outskirts of Jackson, Tenn. He suffered seven bites on the back and deep scratches on his face and arms from "a hairy thing with large fangs."

● Two men stared in shocked disbelief as "something out of a horror movie" picked up a Volkswagen and hurled it against a tree in a parking lot 45 miles from Pensacola, Fla.

"The deranged thing will scare the daylights out of you, I guarantee that," said one of the men. "He was a wild animal with the features of a man."

The number of werewolves around the world has quadrupled since 1980. An estimated 500 to 1,000 werewolves live in the United States alone.

Since 1980, werewolves have killed 45 people in Brazil, Spain, France and Great Britain. This Toilet paper saves woman's life!

A woman was saved from certain death when a bullet meeting straight for her heart was stopped cold — by a roll of extra fluffy bathroom tissue.

struck the sack and lodged in a thick roll of toilet paper.

"That shell would have gone right through her chest," says investigating officer Luis Mendez. "It's a miracle she's still alive."

My sister seduced my fiance — two days before our wedding!

Confidential

Dear Disappointed in Hanover: I agree with you 100 percent. Size isn't everything — but it's close!

Dear Riding High in Marble: I could say a lot of things about your situation but I'll keep it short and sweet: Run every woman who slept her way to the top 10,000 steps down her way to the bottom!

Dear Partner in Vain: Blinks and stinks may break my heart — but I doubt it!

Dear Wondering in Weft: I don't care what your boyfriend says. Any body who spells their full name with two wee's is sure to be a sick puppy!

Dear Crazy in Sandy Cove: Your letter was the pits — and so are you!

Dear Horrified Boy in L.A.: It's the most natural thing in the world, kiddo. Ask your dad for details!

Dear Tizzone in Reno: At 38, you're not old for sex!

Dear Dotti: My sister came to visit me from the West Coast and actually seduced my fiance two days before our wedding. I threw the tramp out. But my fiance begged me to forgive him and we went through with the wedding.

Unfortunately I'm beginning to have doubts and feel like I did the wrong thing. I'm hurt and confused, Dotti. What should I do? — Betrayed in Atlanta

Dear Betrayed: This so called kind hand of yours will obviously sleep with any slut who comes down the pike. With that in mind, get smart — and leave your wayfid marriage annulled!

My stuck-up friend thinks she's God's gift to men!

Dear Dotti: I have a very good friend who has one really bad point. She thinks she is God's gift to men. I want to tell her to get off her high horse but I don't want to hurt her feelings because she really is my best friend. Please give me some advice, Dotti. I really need it bad. — Undecided in Galveston

Dear Undecided: Take a picture of your friend when she's picking her nose or sitting on the toilet and distribute copies to all the guys you know. That'll bring Miss High and Mighty down a peg or two! I personally guarantee it!

My co-worker's belching habit is grossing me out!

Dear Dotti: I work with a guy who has gross personal habits, but the least of which is that he'll stand into a room with his mouth wide open and run water with a big 'burp' Advice please. — Grossed in Boston

Dear Grossed: The solution to your problem is as plain as the nose on my face. The next time Mr. Gross out walks into a room with his mouth open, take a gun shoulder — and say him where it hurts.

Jealous wife won't let me look at swimsuit cuties!

Dear Dotti: My wife and I visited the pool at our apartment complex and she caught me looking at young women in bathing suits. When we got home later that day, she said she was never going swimming again and warned that if I went by myself, she'd divorce me in a minute. I really enjoy swimming but I know my wife is serious. What do you think about this? — Dry in Memphis

Dear Dry: What did the idiot expect you to do at the swimming pool — right the sun? Your wife is insanely jealous, but. And the operative word here is "insane!"

Hey Dotti, let us straighten out your bad attitude!

Dear Dotti: My platoon mates and I read your column every week in Weekly World News and we've come to the conclusion that you are mean as hell. We're stationed here in Hinkenkle. Germany. Why don't you visit sometime? We'll straighten out that bad attitude of yours and give you some lovin' to boot! — Soldier in Hinkenkle

Dear Soldier: Don't make me puke!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33464.

President Clinton

By MARCUS CAINE

Bill Clinton's beleaguered administration got a needed shot in the arm when the President met with an elderly and crippled but surprisingly energetic John F. Kennedy in what some observers are [redacted] "the most important political summit in history."

That's the word from author and top Kennedy expert Jackson Kelly, who says the 76-year-old ex President jetted to Camp David from an undisclosed location and discussed domestic and foreign affairs, the national economy, health care and Clinton's plummeting popularity during the two-hour meeting at the compound on June 16.

AUTHOR Kelly

Chief White House insiders are having said that Kennedy "scolded Clinton for his indecisiveness" and warned that he failed to "listen to the people what they want to hear without any thought of making good on his promises" will destroy his presidency before it gets started.

The papers went on to say that JFK criticized the President's determination to give First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton unprecedented personal power as a noble but misguided gesture that will "galvanize public opinion" against him.

It remains to be seen if President Clinton took Kennedy's counsel to heart. But it is widely believed that JFK's words had a profound impact on the President and will result in "immediate and awesome changes" in his administration.

"This is a staggering development in the history of American politics," declared Kelly, whose provocative new book, JFK — Reckoning, Today and Tomorrow, is slated for an autumn release.

"Everybody's embarrassed with Clinton and his presidency are in trouble," he continued. "If the President intends to govern effectively he has to rally Americans behind him.

"Mr Kennedy is a natural to help him."

White House spokesman declined to comment on Kelly's report and nervously denied that the President met with anyone, much less John F Kennedy, at Camp David on June 16. Kelly countered by quoting highly placed administration sources as having said that Clinton did, in fact, leave the White House under cover of darkness on June 16 and was airlifted to Camp David before daybreak. The sources said [illegible]

JFK's advice to Clinton:

Nobody knows exactly what John F Kennedy told President Clinton during their secret two-hour meeting at Camp David, but White House sources who overheard bits and pieces of the conversations said JFK had some surprisingly tough suggestions for the President, including:

- ECONOMY: Emergency $1,000 one-time tax refund that will put disposable income in Americans' pockets and spark the economy.
- HEALTH CARE: One-year freeze on malpractice lawsuits that will save billions in health care costs.
- IMAGE: Be honest with Americans — don't make false promises that are impossible to keep.
- ADVICE FOR HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON: Insiders overheard Kennedy's advice to the First Lady this way: "Ask not what your husband can do for you, ask what you can do for your husband."

Summit of the century!

Presidents secretly returned to Washington later that morning. They also provided Kelly with a stark black and white photograph that shows Clinton pushing JFK's wheelchair during a 11 marine stroll at the Presidential retreat.

This isn't the first time that someone has presented evidence to suggest that Kennedy survived the attempt on his life in Dallas back in 1963 and still has the best interests of the United States at heart.

As Weekly World News and other major media reported in August 1995, European neurosurgeon Dr. Jenya Parin broke a silence of 27 years when she claimed to have been JFK's personal physician from 1963 to 1969.

The doctor said Kennedy suffered massive head injuries but did not die in the assassination attempt.

She went on to say that he fled the U.S. and moved to a secret location in Europe, where he remained conscious [illegible] paralyzed from the waist down, as late as 1981.

Dr. Parin also claimed that JFK secretly advised Presidents Nixon, Ford, Carter, Reagan and Bush. And if Kelly is correct, the list now includes President Clinton.

"My sources believe that the meeting was suggested by Kennedy and eagerly agreed to by Clinton's staff," said Kelly.

"As we have been part of the plot, JFK is now believed to be living in a secret location in the U.S.

"It is the case, it is reasonable to assume that Mr. Clinton will have ready access to him whenever the need arises.

"To my mind, the only mystery is why former President Kennedy waited so long to contact the President and offer to help him out. President Clinton has struggled from day one.

"JFK might literally be his savior but only time will tell," Kelly said.

HOW TO BE HAPPIER BY STUDYING YOUR DREAMS!

Studying your dreams can help you resolve disturbing emotional problems and make your life happier, says a psychologist.

"People have a serious biological need to dream — it's a way to deal with stress. Your dreams give you dramatic stories that tell you what your life is really about," says Dr. Richard Carriere, author of the book, The Dream Makers.

To gain the most benefit from your dreams, Dr. Carriere offers these suggestions:

1. Remember your feelings in the dream, not the "pictures." Ask yourself what you were feeling, don't try and interpret the dream. And if you talk with somebody about the feelings you experienced in your dreamlife, you will improve your psychological health.

2. Ask yourself how expressive you were in your dream. "Did you really express yourself emotionally and verbally? If you are not being expressive, it parallels the way you are in your waking life," says Dr. Carriere.

3. Ask yourself how active you were. "Were you the star or the victim? The winner or the loser? Were you just observing the dream or were you in there pushing?" If you are a victim in your dreams, you probably feel like a victim in your waking life," says Dr. Carriere.

4. If you can't remember the dream when you wake up, take a few minutes during the day to make up a dream, based on the way you felt when you woke up. That will help you remember your future dreams.

5. Don't try and figure out what the dream means. "It's too difficult to interpret dreams but if you ask, 'How did I feel in this dream?' you are asking a question you can answer," Dr. Carriere said. "If your feelings are very mixed up during the day you're going to have mixed up and confused dreams at night."

6. Don't worry about nightmares. You always wake up before the disaster happens so why worry about it?

7. Recurrent dreams are a warning sign crying, "Pay attention!" They're telling you something you're afraid to face while awake.

8. Don't worry about dreams being prophetic, because they rarely come true.

Florida woman's horrifying encounter

'A SPACE ALIEN ATE MY DOG!'

DOG-EATER! Madge Kinston holds an artist's conception of the alien she saw eat her beloved puppy Teeny

By DAN CARLTON

A 50-year-old woman says a space alien attacked and ate her pet dog Teeny in one of the most horrifying close encounters ever!

And while Madge Kinston's story might sound ridiculous, consider this: Investigators say that dozens of eyewitnesses have spotted similar alien-eating extraterrestrials or UFO's hot spots around the world in the past six months alone.

"I don't care if people think I'm crazy or not ... I know what I saw and my precious dog is gone," said Miss Kinston of Miami, Fla.

"That monster, that ugly creature, picked him off the ground like he was a matchless strip. Then, as God is my witness, he ate my Teeny alive."

The mind-bending drama reportedly unfolded on the morning of June 10. Miss Kinston said she was in her back yard when she heard an eerie "whistling noise" and noticed shrubbery as if they were straining under a strong wind.

DISTRAUGHT Miss Kinston holds a picture of Teeny

A split second later, she said, a strange creature that looked like a cross between a lizard and a human materialized inside a saucer-shaped UFO that was hovering at treetop level 15 feet away.

Miss Kinston said she reacted in pure terror when the alien — which she described as being 7 feet tall and weighing 300 pounds — reached out with a long, scaly arm and grabbed Teeny by the scruff of the neck.

"I couldn't scream. I couldn't move. I couldn't do anything but watch," said the woman, who waits tables at a deli.

"At first it just looked like it was playing with Teeny. It was holding him up in the air and looking at him with its big, yellow eyes ... causing her to breeze in her tracks.

"The next thing I knew, Teeny bolted out of the house and ran over to the alien, wagging his tail. I wanted to stop him but I couldn't move a muscle.

"I couldn't even close my eyes to keep from looking when that monster got Teeny. It was a nightmare I'll never forget."

or a dinosaur, she claims.

"After the alien ate Teeny it just vanished from the face of the Earth," she continued. "The UFO started hovering and whistling, then it vanished, too."

Miss Kinston said she alerted authorities, who referred her to Tallahassee-based UFO researcher Dr. Cal Dent.

He said that independent researchers have investigated "dozens of similar encounters in Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, New Mexico and

STARVING DIETER TRIES TO EAT DWARF!

MIDGET MEAL!

By LAUREL HOWIE
Correspondent

PARIS, France — Perky plumber Ray Reed Richard lived on nothing but cottage cheese and carrots for weeks before his starvation diet drove him daffy — and he tried to eat a dwarf!

Roly-poly Raymond was arrested with hatchet in hand as he rumbled down the [illegible] in hot pursuit of pint-sized Paul Delbarre — like a farmer chasing a terrified chicken toward the chopping block.

Pudgy plumber was living on carrots and cottage cheese!

"This is great. I don't know what came over me," the would-be weight watcher later told police. "I'd been starving my self for so long my head was playing tricks on me and the little guy started looking like a chicken. I really wanted to catch him and eat him for lunch."

The blubbery barrister began his calorie-counting campaign in mid-March in an effort to impress a curvaceous customer.

"I fixed her fancy drain and fell in love," he recalled. "But I knew she would never go for a man who weighed nearly 300 pounds so I decided to eat nothing but three carrots and a cup of cottage cheese each day.

"I was losing the fats but I could tell I was going slowly mad. I couldn't think of anything but food — especially chicken."

And the diet led to near disaster the day ravenous Raymond, 31, spotted peewee Paul strolling along a side street with a pal.

"I knew Paul Delbarre — our neighborhood liar," said the potbellied plumber.

"But that day I would have sworn he was a chicken, and his plaster sounded just like a fat old hen clucking away."

So, with visions of drumsticks dancing in his head, loud crazy Ray grabbed a hatchet from the back of his van and lit out after the horrified dwarf.

"It turn into wild," chuckled Charles Barbeau, who witnessed the bizarre spectacle. "The fat guy was chasing Paul with the ax screaming, 'Stop chicken! I'll get you!'

"Paul's stubby little arms and legs were flying in all directions and his eyes were as big as saucers.

"When I realized what was happening, I ran out and yelled to a couple of cops and they caught the big guy and wrestled the hatchet away from him. Those officers probably saved poor Paul's life. It was scary."

Red-faced Ray was charged with assault but said he plans to plead temporary insanity.

"I think anybody who's ever been on one of those diets knows what I was going through," he said.

"Nobody in his right mind mistakes a dwarf for a chicken. I want to apologize to the little guy."

And his intended victim says he holds no ill will. "I've always liked Ray, but I'll never go near him unless he's had a good meal," half-pint Paul told reporters. "When SHOCKING revelation!

'I'VE CAPTURED BAT BOY!'

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

A Las Vegas businessman says he has captured the elusive and extremely dangerous Bat Boy and is holding the frightening creature in his garage.

"I found Bat Boy asleep floating on a plastic raft in my pool," said Eric Ricciardi, manager of a direct mailing company in Las Vegas.

"With the help of my roommate Don McCowan, I scooped him out of the water with my pool net and locked him in my garage."

Zoological Park Dillon had heard a nanosecond alert through Death World News last October when the vicious 3-foot, 15-pound monster escaped from a research center in Wheeling, W. Va.

Dr. Dillon and his research team had heard and subdued Bat Boy with a tranquilizer while studying subterranean life forms in a cave in the Blennerhassett Mountains.

Despite his size, the half-human, half-bat boy has razor-sharp teeth and the strength of an ape. "His small but eyes are large, enabling him to see in the dark. His sensitive ears work like radar," Dr. Dillon explained.

"He is quick, powerful and as intelligent as a child. I hope and pray we are able to recapture him before anyone gets hurt."

Ricciardi, Jr. thought the Bat Boy story was a joke until he discovered him in the pool.

"I was going to call the police, but I didn't think they would believe me," Ricciardi said. "I figured Bat Boy would be comfortable in the garage because there are no windows.

LETTER sent to The NEWS told of Bat Boy's capture!

"He was very lethargic at first, but started screeching from dark to dawn. It was a chilling, scary sound — like a bat multiplied about 1 million. I slip food under the garage door to him once a day. He eats mostly table scraps and bugs. But he's starting to like the same food as my roommate and I eat. He is especially fond of Spam and applesauce."

Ricciardi believes the Bat Boy "is as much afraid of us as we are of him" and "is terrified when we feed him — and I'm glad he is!"

"I used my kids' baseball bat as a hammer last week because mine is in the garage. I was NOT about to go in there and get it," Ricciardi said.

Dr. Dillon said he'll fly to Las Vegas within the week to take Bat Boy off Ricciardi's hands.

"We underestimated the creature last time. We are going to take extra precautions to make sure he doesn't escape again," Dr. Dillon said.

"THAT'S HIM!" Ricciardi with "Bat Boy Wanted" poster.

FARMERS would be put out of work if Plant Rights succeeds in its efforts to stop the world's crop production.

Protesters want to ban farming — because it's cruel to plants!

Thousands of activists have organized protests in more than a dozen countries, pleading with world leaders to ban all farming — because, they say, farmers violate the rights of plants!

And though the campaign may sound ridiculous, supporters insist they're dead serious.

"This is no joke," said Marthe LaPlant, president and founder of Plant Rights, the 1,000-member group that organized the anti-farming campaign.

"People have rights. Animals have rights. We think it's time that plants had rights, too. We're going to do every thing in our power to make sure they get them."

Farmers and agriculture experts didn't take the group and their campaign seriously at first, but they're beginning to change their tune.

That's because they've convinced that the theft and destruction of 40 truckloads of fruits and vegetables bound for market were masterminded at Miss LaPlant's headquarters in Avignon, France.

"We can't prove they did it, but who else would steal thousands of bushels of farm-fresh foods and dump them in a river?" asked Bertrand Didier, an agriculture lobbyist in Paris.

"Those activists are off their rockers.

"I wouldn't put anything beyond them, including violence."

Miss LaPlant denies having anything to do with the thefts but admits that whoever is responsible is helping her cause.

"If they bankrupt just one farmer, we'll be that much

NEW DIET PILL APPROVED FOR SALE IN U.S.

Researchers Consider...100% Safe And Effective

AN AMAZING weight loss product has been developed that will enable virtually anyone to reduce weight rapidly, without dieting, without giving up favorite foods and without fear of side effects.

The tablet's main ingredient has been approved by the FDA, and is contained 100% safe and effective. Fat-bust researchers are hailing this product — which comes as "The best ever," "One of our most potent drugs," and "Perfect for anyone who wants to lose weight."

The tablet, which has been trade named Metamol, has been tested in over 100 clinics around the world and has scientifically proved to help people lose weight without changing their eating habits, without exercise and without keeping track of calories.

A prestigious New York physician has tested Metamol on 250 of his patients. After taking Metamol, they were effectively able to eat normally. Every patient lost weight, even those who ate junk food like cake, candy and fast food; one person losing over 100 lbs. in only 2 months, another 15 lbs. in one week.

The best is yet to come — tests have shown that people who are just 10 lbs. overweight have lost weight at the same rate as people who are 100 lbs. overweight. Unbelievable but true — that's why this tablet is considered by scientists to be the best formula ever invented for losing weight. Researchers are amazed at how people who take Metamol can go on eating untrimmed portions of their favorite foods and still lose weight.

But the biggest breakthrough is how the FDA approved this product. Normally, it takes years for a new drug to be approved by the FDA. But Metamol was approved in record time because of its tremendous success record.

> "We are going to blow away every weight loss product currently on the market because they won't be able to compete with us."

Metamol is simply the most effective weight loss product ever. Weight loss clinics will become obsolete. The note-worthy manufacturer claims that this is such a major breakthrough in the weight loss industry that they are being flooded with requests for Metamol franchises. Since the demand for Metamol is so great, the company has decided to allow Metamol to be purchased by mail order only.

If you would like to order Metamol, send check or money order to Sterling Labs, 1957 St. George Avenue, Suite 255, Dept. A01, Rahway, N. J. 07065. 2-Week Supply $19.95, 4-Week Supply $34.95, 6-Week Supply $49.95 + $4.00 S&H. Rush orders add $15 for 3-day delivery. money order only. No Canadian orders accepted.

UFO RADIOS AIRLINER

. . . to avoid a midair collision!

Artist's conception of Soviet jet's midair encounter with a starship, as described by eyewitnesses aboard the plane

By JACK MORRISEY / Correspondent

PARIS, France — A Russian airliner with 188 passengers aboard almost collided with a UFO that radioed the Russian pilot to avoid a midair disaster!

The close encounter that occurred April 8 over the western edge of the Caspian Sea was revealed when a team of Russian scientists investigating the incident submitted a formal request for the photographs taken over the region by a French weather satellite.

Western intelligence sources with access to the Russian files on the case say the eerie exchange between the airline pilot and the UFO was overheard and recorded by air traffic controllers in Volgograd.

"The incident took place about 45 minutes into an Aeroflot flight bound for Volgograd from the city of Baku on the Caspian coast," said a French intelligence officer, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified.

"The airliner climbed to a cruising altitude of 32,000 feet on a course carrying it over the western portion of the Caspian Sea," the source said.

"Just moments after the airliner was handed over to the controllers at Volgograd the pilot reported the sighting of an extremely bright light in the night sky directly in front of him at an approximate distance of five miles."

"Bomb left 90 degrees. We can't change course while you are in our enemy fields!" — UFO transmission

The Aeroflot pilot identified as Victor Ulanov, later told amazed Russian officials that the brightly illuminated object approached at blinding speed, revealing the outline of a craft that was approximately 20 times larger than the size of his jetliner. The pilot was frozen and a collision appeared unavoidable until a voice from the UFO instructed him how to avoid the danger, a French officer said.

The intelligence officer who heard a tape of the exchange said the calm voice from the UFO sounded like that of a little girl and told the Russian pilot to "immediately bank left 90 degrees. We cannot change course while you are in our enemy field."

According to the source the badly shaken crew and passengers were kept in isolation for a week after they landed in Volgograd.

"It is an incredibly well-documented encounter, but at this point the Russians are more interested in keeping it quiet," the officer said.

Lawyer who bashed wife and kids to death wants to practice law again!

"WHAT is the matter with me?" asks killer Robert T. Rowe, who's pleading for the right to practice law again.

POLICE remove one of Rowe's victims. He used a baseball bat to bludgeon his family to death

By JACK ALEXANDER Staff writer

A crybaby killer who beat his wife and three kids to death with a baseball bat and didn't spend a day in prison is pitching a heavy-fit because he can't practice law anymore.

Lawyer Robert T. Rowe was found not guilty by reason of mental disease or defect in the brutal murders of his family in 1978. He spent two years in a institution and underwent eight years of psychotherapy. Today he's a free man.

While Rowe was in the insane asylum, his fellow lawyers worked to have him disbarred from the bar. When he tried to get that license back in 1986, he was disbarred.

Rowe, 44, had been practicing law for 22 years back in 1978 when he went berserk and wiped out his entire family in the space of a few hours.

On that bloody February morning 13 years ago, Rowe bashed his son Robert's brains in as the 10-year-old boy lay sleeping in bed.

Two hours later, he told his daughter Jennifer, 9, to close her eyes so he could play a game with her. Then he clubbed her to death.

was happening, his 13-year-old son Christopher asked his dad what was happening.

Rowe bludgeoned him to death.

When his unsuspecting wife returned home hours later, Rowe was waiting with his bloody baseball bat — and ended her life.

Rowe, who has remarried and has a 3-year-old daughter, has been fighting an uphill battle to practice law again. "I had been a lawyer in good standing before the tragedy, and it seemed terribly logical [illegible] mentally ill, you'd be reinstated," he said.

"But instead of pointing to me and saying, 'One of our own is back,' they came after me as though I were a criminal. What is the matter with me?"

Rowe is down to his court of last resort — the U.S. Supreme Court — in his battle to practice law again.

(Do you think Rowe should be allowed to practice law again? Write to Crybaby Killer, Weekly World News, 600 E. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.)

SURPRISES ARE GOOD FOR YOU, SAYS EXPERT

A simple surprise can work wonders — giving a big boost to your emotional and your physical health, says a top psychologist.

"A surprise a day can be better than an apple a day for keeping in good health emotionally and physically," declares Dr. Herbert Huffman.

A surprise, he said, "gets the heart beating faster, the blood rushing through the body, the adrenal glands [illegible] surprise takes away the feeling that life is monotonous. It gives you the hope that something new, good and exciting may possibly be lurking around the very next corner."

Dr. Huffman offered the following tips for making surprises happen:

● Buy or do something in the "somebody I'm going to" category. You might, for example, buy that CD player you've been looking at — or change the [illegible] ing of learning to dance or learning tennis because you were afraid of failure. Surprise yourself by tackling that very activity and you may discover that you have many untapped talents.

● Take a weekend trip or vacation without planning every moment. Instead of reserving each night's lodging ahead of time and seeking out the same restaurants where you dined last year, just hit the road and allow the [illegible] keep our inquisitiveness in ourselves. Surprise yourself by giving in to your curiosity. For example, if you've been admiring your neighbor's lawn and wondering how he keeps it so beautiful — go ahead and ask him.

SPACE ALIEN

OMNEC ONEC now lives in West Windy City but says she

By SUSAN SIMPSON

Chicago housewife Omnec Onec is dying to meet space alien Paul Wellmer — because she's an alien herself and she wants another extraterrestrial to talk to!

The blonde mother of three — whose native planet is Venus — read an article about Wellmer in the April 6, 1993, issue of the Weekly World News and admits she was fascinated. She says she's aware of other space aliens living in this country, but Wellmer — who lives in Fredericktown, Mo. — is not known to her because he comes from outside our solar system.

"I would love for him to come see me in Chicago," said Omnec, whose book UFO From Venus I Come sold out when it hit the bookstores two years ago.

"There are so many solar systems, each with many planets, and I am not familiar with every one. I would love to talk to him and learn about his world."

Omnec went public about her alien origins in 1990, when she published her book in an effort to teach earthlings about the brotherhood of planets. She says she comes from 30 million aliens from Mars, Saturn, Venus and Jupiter who occupy important positions in American society. Worldwide, she says, there are more than 1,000.

Wellmer, who is called Supreme on his

Born 144 Earth years ago, Omnec Onec was raised on the planet Venus in a town called Protonia. She lived on an astral plane — without a physical body — until she was instructed by her leaders to travel to Earth with a message of peace and brotherhood.

Omnec says she was trained to live as a human in an ancient monastery in Ti... placing a 2-year-old child who had died in a fiery crash.

She grew up, married and moved to Chicago, where she raised three children, worked as a barmaid, a clothes designer and a cashier.

She revealed her true space alien nature in 1990, when she wrote and published her best-selling book. Today, she travels around the United States and Europe, spreading a message of

"I have not read Zimmer Chee's book, but it sounds like something I should know about," he told the NEWS. "And I would definitely like to meet her. We have much to talk about, I'm sure."

When Wellmer gets together with Qiruev, it will be the first meeting on Earth with another space alien. And the extraterrestrial admits he's been lonely since the spaceship wreck separated him from others of his kind.

"A day doesn't go by that I don't wonder where my fellow crew members are," he said.

"It's hard being the only one. I'm delighted to know that Zimmer Chee wants to get together."

SEEKING ALIENS: Paul Wellmer says he is from the planet Tau'Ceti

Kmart store manager once worked as a UFO engineer!

Paul Wellmer, whose true name is Nemmos, was born on the spaceship Wonder in Earth years ago. He was among thousands of space aliens aboard the starship which came from the planet of Tau'Ceti, an Earth-like world located in the Solar B System of Constellation Canis Major.

When the spaceship crashed on the planet on June 13, 1947, the extraterrestrial starship engineer survived by freezing the body of a 1-month-old earthling and taking his place. He has been living the life of a normal human ever since, marrying and getting a job as a night clerk at Kmart in the small town of Fredericktown, Mo.

Wellmer says he has taken pains to be physical appearance is exactly as different.

HOW TO COPE WITH THE DEATH OF A PET!

Grieving over the death of a pet is a perfectly normal thing to do, say two prominent behavior experts — who explain how to cope with your loss.

"Never underestimate the importance of the loss of a pet," said Dr. Ivan G. Podolnikar. "The death of a pet can be very traumatic — particularly for children and people who live alone."

Dr. Podolnikar, a nationally famous psychiatrist, said the loss of a pet can create severe feelings of loss and depression.

"This is a dignified reaction and should be treated with respect," he said. "Because, to some, the loss of a pet is like the loss of a person."

Dr. Podolnikar and Dr. Boris M. Levinson, a psychologist, offer the following tips on coping with the death of a pet:

● If the pet belongs to a child, respect the child's wish to have a burial ceremony. Such rituals are a final act of reconciliation to the departure of a loved one.

● When a child loses a pet, don't get another right away, expecting the child to forget his or her grief. Emotions don't operate that way — it'll take a while for a friendship to develop between the child and the new pet.

● Don't be too embarrassed to cry. Some may tell you it's only a dog or only a cat, but you must express your own feelings.

● Don't torture yourself with accusations and guilt.

● Don't try to replace your pet too soon. Wait awhile to decide whether or not you want to start a new relationship with a new animal.

HOW TO MAKE THINNING HAIR LOOK GREAT!

Even if your hair is thin, you can still look great just by learning how to make the most of it, says a top hairdresser. Lynn McCaig.

"You can look absolutely terrific with thin hair — I often pick my models with medium or thin hair because they do look so good," declared McCaig.

McCaig gave these tips for making the most of thin hair:

1. Select a cut that's fuller on the ends. "This makes the hair appear to be thicker than it really is," explained McCaig.

2. If you prefer a short style, cut it really short. "Go as short as your face will accommodate. The shorter your hair, the thicker it will look."

3. Keep longer styles on the short side. "For instance, cut to chin level instead of shoulder length. The only exception would be in the case of naturally curly hair, which can look good shoulder length even if it's thin."

4. Massage the scalp regularly to promote circulation and thereby help the hair grow stronger. "Herbs can be used to help this stimulation. Two very old remedies, now available to you, are rosemary and jaborandi."

5. Avoid junk foods. "Hair health comes from inside, so you've got to eat a good, balanced diet."

6. Condition your hair well, especially if you blow-dry or heat-style it. "You will damage and lose hair if you don't condition it."

Man crushed by elephant!

A four-ton elephant crushed a man to death when the frenzied animal pinned him against a truck trailer in a suburban mall.

The elephant was being held in a compound at the Clyde Beatty Cole Brothers Circus which was encamped at the mall in Pinkhill, N.Y.

Police have no idea whether or not Christopher Poole, 32, provoked the animal or why he climbed into the elephant compound.

'WE CAN'T FLUSH AWAY THE GHOST IN OUR TOILET!'

ARTIST'S conception shows dead plumber Paul Taylor's face rising from the toilet, just as the Sterns say it does.

A terrified family says their toilet has been haunted by the ghost of a dead plumber for three years — and top ghostbusters can't do anything about the eerie spirit!

They are still trying desperately to exorcise the spirit that has caused their john to smoke, gush water and burst into flames since 1990.

"We know it's the spirit of the plumber because we've seen his face in the bowl," said homeowner Richard Stern of New York City. "We're afraid to use our own toilet."

The strange story was first reported in Weekly World News in late 1990 after plumber Paul Taylor was crushed to death by a heavy cast-iron fitting while working under the Sterns' house.

Both Stern and his wife Mary Alice realized something was wrong when she lifted the toilet lid and released a cloud of thick smoke and yellow flames that shot over the rim.

"Two days later we saw a face in the bowl and my husband noticed the water shining with an eerie green light," she said. "We called a plumber but he found nothing wrong. That's when I realized we might be dealing with a ghost."

The couple contacted several professional ghostbusters and persuaded one to come to their house.

"We had one expert camp in the bathroom the three days and nights before he saw anything," said Mrs. Stern.

"Then everything happened at once. The pipes started clanking and water gushed out of the toilet and the face of the spirit was literally floating in the bowl.

"The ghostbuster tried every trick in the book but had to admit there was nothing he could do to help us."

Several experts have tried to communicate with the spirit over the past three years but haven't had any success.

"They all tell us they are trying to help the ghost reunite

WATER HEATER ROCKETS THROUGH COUPLE'S ROOF!

An unsuspecting couple was fast asleep in their bed when their basement water heater exploded and took off like a rocket — blasting through the floor just three feet from where they slept!

Tony Sabaad and Vicky Anderson went flying when the overheated heater went ballistic, crashing through the floor, ceiling and roof of their house and traveling 300 feet through the air.

"It was like an atom bomb had gone off," said Jerry Schiller, a neighbor who heard the explosion. The heater landed in Miss Smith's yard, missing her house by 50 feet and leaving a hole in the ground two feet across and a foot deep.

Incredibly, the St. Paul, Minn., couple was not hurt, but their unlucky dog, who'd been sleeping — in the path of the 3-ft.-ground tank — was killed.

Capt. Harry Flood of the South St. Paul Fire Department said, "That rusty old thing ripped through two floors and the roof like a hot knife through butter."

It flew over the garage and across the alley like it was shot out of a cannon. There it landed in the woman's yard.

Capt. Flood explained that the heater was at least 40 years old and did not have a pressure release valve which modern heaters are all equipped with.

"The steam built up and blew the bottom off and that's what sent it soaring just like a big rocket."

The base of the 50-gallon electric water heater buried the Sabaad-Anderson home with a thunderous crash.

Fortunately, books like pieces flying up as hard as the strongest parts of the nearby house and windows were blown yards away. The house was jarred off its foundation.

An eyewitness said a huge cloud of dust billowed up out of the house after the blast. Amazingly, the accident did not cause a fire.

Firemen and neighbors spent the next day helping the owners board up their damaged home. "The house is not habitable. It needs new plumbing, new wiring, new walls, new floors, new ceilings, new roof, new windows, new doors, new everything," said Capt. Flood.

Expert's shocking WARNING!

By TONY CASSIDY
Special correspondent

A noted insect expert has issued a chilling doomsday warning: "Ants are space aliens that are taking over the Earth — just as they did Mars and other now lifeless planets!"

"People have always thought of ants as something as much a part of Earth as the air we breathe," declared Dr Conrad Stutz, a California entomologist who's made a lifelong study of the tiny insects.

"But my colleagues and I have positive proof that the ant is not native to planet Earth. It's an alien life-form that came here from outer space.

"The ants now found in every populated, habitable corner of Earth could have been carried here by space winds or on starships that landed here. But how they arrived isn't important.

Dr Stutz

"What is important is they are slowly but surely taking over.

"They're everywhere . . . and judging by an explosive rate Scientists they will do to Earth what we believe they did to other planets they inhabited . . . they killed them!"

Dr Stutz explained that in many parts of the Amazon, Africa, Borneo and India enormous armies of carpenter ants are moving through vast areas, devouring every tree in their path while other species are stripping the ground bare of every single blade of grass and millions of acres of crops.

"Without grass, grazing animals starve and the food chain is devastated by erosion. What crops aren't eaten by the ants will be blown away as dry winds sweep across the barren, lifeless land.

"If they aren't stopped in time, ants will blanket the Earth, and mankind will not survive on this planet if that happens.

"What is especially terrifying is that, at present, we have no way of killing them en masse. And if we can't kill them, they will, sooner or later, cover Earth like a living, smothering blanket of death.

"Eventually, the ants will transform this beautiful paradise to be a lifeless sphere of dirt and water. And they will perish as well — unless they manage to reach another inhabitable planet where they can start the cycle all over again."

Dr. Stutz, one of the world's foremost experts on ants, is the man who first warned that

Getting caught in the rain not only gets you wet — it also makes you dumb!

That's the revolutionary finding of Dr. Dalait Bhavan, noted psychologist and researcher based in Calcutta.

Dr. Bhavan's tests indicate that prolonged exposure to rainfall can actually lower human intelligence by an alarming 15 to 21 IQ points for up to two weeks.

Test subjects lost considerable memory and reasoning power, particularly in the areas of mathematics and language skills.

"I always felt there was a connection between heavy rainfall and reports in special power," says Dr. Bhavan, 61. "But until now, I was just a personal belief with no evidence to back it up. I first noticed it in myself one day when my car broke down on the way to the lab and I had to walk several miles in the rain.

"That whole day, I had trouble concentrating on my work and doing basic arithmetic. I never forgot the experience. I felt sure there was a connection between the storm and my weakened mental powers. I talked to several friends and colleagues who had similar experiences. But I could never prove my theory scientifically because no one would provide financial backing for my research."

Finally, last year, a large British research group concerned about the effects of the frequent rain in London, gave the controversial scientist funding for the project that would test his ideas.

Dr. Bhavan conducted his experiment on two groups of volunteers, each comprised of 50 volunteers. One group was exposed to the torrential Calcutta rain for an hour a day for 21 consecutive days. The other group was not exposed to the rain.

The difference in their IQ scores was alarming.

Although the renegade professor is receiving cautious praise for his work from many of his colleagues, he has also drawn some skeptical reactions from certain more conservative members of the scientific community.

"Bhavan may be on to something," states Dr. Raymond McWhirter of Melbourne, Australia, in a letter to a leading medical journal. "But I'd like to see more evidence before I'm fully convinced."

However, Dr. Bhavan's published report is painstakingly documented. He has carefully measured and recorded the participants' IQ scores both before and after exposure to the rainy weather and the latter scores are in fact lower.

Dr. Bhavan can't account for the temporary drop in mental capacity but told reporters that simply taking long showers or shampooing hair frequently doesn't seem to have the same effect as rain water.

DON'T get stuck in the rain without your umbrella.

Thieves are ripped to shreds after looting ancient tomb!

THE PHARAOH'S CURSE STRIKES AGAIN!

MUMMY'S revenge is the only explanation for the three bizarre deaths, says an expert.

By ROBERT PAYTON (Correspondent)

The bodies of three men who looted an Egyptian tomb were found torn to pieces at the bottom of a gorge — victims of an ancient pharaoh's curse!

According to an official report leaked to the press in Cairo, the three dead men were all in their early 30s and members of a notorious gang that preys on the tombs of Egyptian pharaohs near the fabled Valley of the Kings.

Osman Rahoud, the government's chief investigator in the bizarre case, said the gang is responsible for the theft of hundreds of priceless artifacts from the ancient tombs and archaeological digs in the area. The stolen items are sold to private collectors at a fraction of their value, according to Rahoud.

The three slain gang members met their horrible deaths shortly after they raided a previously unknown burial site.

The mutilated bodies of Sami El Nahas, 31, Mahmoud El Abd, 33, and Hamby Sabry, 30, were found lying in a gorge two miles from the ancient tomb they discovered.

"In 45 years of police work, I have never seen anything like it," Rahoud said.

"These men were literally torn limb from limb."

The investigator said he initially believed the men were victims of a pack of wild animals, but after the remains were flown to Cairo for autopsies, medical examiners concluded the gruesome wounds autopsy reports, there were no bite marks and no scratches on the bodies," Rahoud said.

"Our next best theory was that the victims were attacked by members of a rival gang, but it would have definitely required superhuman strength to rip these men to pieces."

Rahoud said medical examiners found traces of ancient oils and spices that helped preserve the Egyptian kings for burial on the remains of the three men.

"It appears that they met their horrible deaths before they got very far. Their duffel bag was torn open and the loot it contained has disappeared."

The investigator said the ancient tombs of the Egyptian pharaohs were protected by a curse that condemned anyone who entered to sudden and blame in this case remains a mystery that may never be solved," said Rahoud.

"At this point there is simply no better explanation."

CREEPY Claude Eliard got exactly what he deserved

By JOE BERGER Staff writer

Dazzling amputee Angela England awoke to find a knife-wielding creep crawling into bed with her, so the courageous lady grabbed the only weapon at hand — and beat the bum senseless with her artificial leg!

"The guy had a knife and could have cut my throat, but I wasn't going to let him rape me no matter what," teary-eyed Angela later told reporters.

"I fumbled around for something to hit him with and suddenly I had my leg in my hand. I whacked him as hard as I could across the back of the head and the knife went flying, so then I really started whaling away at him.

"I hit him in the face and I hit him on the head and I hit him in the groin — anyplace I could get at him.

"The next thing I knew the crown was lying in a heap on the floor, so dazed he couldn't move."

Battled Angela, 28, called the cops, who arrested skinny ex-con Claude Eliard on charges of assault, attempted rape and breaking and entering.

"When we arrived, sleazy Claude was lying there holding his head and moaning, and this little one-legged gal was standing over him, daring him to move," recalled Brussels, Belgium, police patrolman Bernard Nadeau.

"But he wasn't going anywhere without help. His nose was busted, his head was split wide open and four or five of his teeth were splintered around the roots. She had absolutely beaten him to a pulp.

Flashing neon shoes foil drug suspect's getaway!

By JACK ALEXANDER Staff writer

A stupid suspect in a drug case stood out like a sore thumb as he dashed through the woods at night to escape from cops — wearing sneakers with flashing red lights!

"Every time he took a step, we knew exactly where he was," said Sheriff's investigator Anthony Anderson.

Alfred E. Acree was wearing a fancy new brand of shoes, featuring battery-powered lights that flash red every time the heel is pressed.

Acree, 18, jumped out of his van and ran into the woods as deputies and other law enforcement officers closed in on him near Charles City, Va.

"We kept seeing tiny red lights flashing in the woods. We didn't know what they were at first, and then we realized he was wearing the light-up sneakers. He led us right to him," Deputy Anderson said.

Deputies found 12 bags of cocaine worth $800 in Acree's pockets. Acree later pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine and is awaiting sentence.
